John McGovern

A WARM Bolton welcome goes out to Keith Peacock and his Gillingham team today — a team who have been one of the dark horses in the promotion race due to the number of games they have had in hand of the rest.

Our first defeat of the season came at Priestfield Stadium back in September so we will obviously be looking to even the score this afternoon.

That match at Gillingham was one in which two of the home side, Dave Mehmet and the much-travelled John Leslie played outstandingly well to play vital parts in their 2-0 win.

Since then we have both been reasonably consistent and I'm sure Keith Peacock is looking for a good run-in to the end of the season just as much as I am.

I was delighted that we managed to outplay Burnley at times in our "derby" game at Turf Moor last Saturday. The match typified our recent away form with the large amount of attacking play and pressure we put into it.

Although we lost to Bradford City in our last match here at Burnden and must be considered rank outsiders in the promotion race now, there will be no slackening off of effort of application from anyone involved on the playing side at Bolton Wanderers.

Our supporters have been a credit to the club and we would never think of giving them less than 100 per cent in return.

It was nice to be able to mix with the supporters at the dance at Maxwell's Plum on Wednesday night when we had the chance to have a "chin-wag" on a million topics. While my chairman always reminds me that there is no "Them and Us" situation in the relationships between board members and players here at Burnden Park, I think the same goes for relations between the players and the fans.

We all try and aim for the same end result — the same target. And that is the good of Bolton Wanderers.

And to be fair to the directors and the other people who work so hard for us, such as the lottery agents etc., the two most crucial groups of people who relate to a club's success are the players and the supporters.

GILLINGHAM

BY TONY PULLEIN

Though Gillingham got back into winning ways with a good 3-1 home victory over Orient last Saturday, their hopes of getting into the promotion bracket now seem to be fading. Inconsistency has been their problem.

On their day the Gills have matched the best in the Third Division. Last month they smashed Oxford United's unbeaten home League record and they have included Sheffield United among their other victories. Sadly, they haven't managed to produce that sort of form often enough to keep in close touch with the leaders.

So far the Gills have won five away games in the League — at Burnley (3-2), Wigan (2-1), Port Vale (1-0), Brentford (3-2) and Oxford (1-0).

They have drawn at Plymouth (1-1), Orient (1-1), Millwall (2-2), Exeter (0-0) and Preston (2-2) but their other away trips ended in defeat at Sheffield United (0-4), Bournemouth (0-2), Walsall (1-3), Scunthorpe (0-2), Bristol Rovers (0-3), Lincoln (0-4) and Newport (0-1).

Gillingham's Milk Cup hopes disappeared in the first round when they were beaten 6-1 on aggregate by Chelsea.

In the third round of the F.A. Cup the Gills were trailing 1-3 at home to Brentford with only 11 minutes to go. Then Russell Musker and Mark Weatherly scored quickly to level the scores. This was followed by goals from John Leslie and Tony Cascarino in the dying moments.

In previous rounds they won 1-0 away to AP Leamington and then crushed Chelmsford 6-1.

The Gills excelled themselves against Everton in round four, holding the Toffees to goalless draws at Goodison Park and the Priestfield Stadium. But they went down 0-3 at home in the third meeting.

They took an early exit from the Associate Members Cup, losing 3-4 at Millwall.

Since returning to the Third Division ten years ago, Gillingham have made one or two bold bids to gain Second Division status for the first time.

They were usually thwarted by late collapses and last season they ended up in 13th place.

During the close-season manager Keith Peacock made one or two new signings. Midfield man David Mehmet was signed from Charlton and John Leslie, a midfield player, with an eye for goal, came from Wimbledon.

Goalkeeper David Fry was signed from Crystal Palace and he has often been in the side this season in place of the veteran Ron Hillyard.

Gillingham won only one of their opening six League games and looked set for a long battle against relegation. Terry Cochrane arrived from Middlesbrough in October and scored in his first match against Preston, won 2-0. And that was the start of a run of eight undefeated matches that lifted them into the middle of the table.

Their long-term aim has always been to experience life in Division Two and, though the prospects of achieving that this year have not looked very bright, recent form suggests they could be ready to go places next season.

The club was founded as New Brompton Excelsior F.C. in 1893 and from 1913 until 1920 they were in the Southern League. That was when the entire First Division of the Southern League was taken over by the Football League to form the Third Division (South).

The Gills usually finished in the lower half of the table and were forced to make several applications for re-election. Indeed, in 1938 they were thrown out of the League to make room for Ipswich Town and it wasn't until the Football League was extended to 92 clubs in 1950 that they returned to the fold.

In 1958 they became founder members of the Fourth Division but in 1964 they won the Championship of that division to enjoy their first-ever promotion. They were relegated again in 1971 but they jumped back again three years later and have since re-established themselves among the better clubs in Division Three.

Their F.A. Cup run came as a bonus this season. They have never really produced any outstanding achievements in Cup football and their best run was a visit to the fifth round of the F.A. Cup in 1970.

They very nearly equalled that this season but, in the end, had to bow to Everton's superiority.

DAVID FRY (Goalkeeper). David joined the Gills from Crystal Palace last summer. He was a member of Palace's F.A. Youth Cup winning teams of 1977 and 1978 and made 40 League appearances for the Selhurst Park club before his transfer.

MEL SAGE (Defender). Mel is a local lad who served his apprenticeship with the club. He made his League debut two season ago and has won a regular place in defence this season.

JOHN SITTON (Defender). John opened his career with Chelsea, making a dozen or so appearances in their League team. He joined Millwall in 1980 and made 45 League appearances for the Lions before leaving for Gillingham two season ago.

PETER SHAW (Defender). Peter went through the youth scheme at Charlton to take his place in League soccer during the 1977/78 season. Peter made more than 100 League appearances for Charlton before moving to Gillingham two seasons ago.

PHILIP HANDFORD (Defender). Philip completed his apprenticeship with Gillingham and won his chance in their League eleven last season.

STEVE BRUCE (Midfield). Steve is an England youth international who grew up at the Priestfield Stadium. He was an instant success upon making his League debut in 1979 and has since been holding his place.

RUSSELL MUSKER (Midfield/Defender). Russell joined Gillingham, initially on loan, from Bristol City in November. He was introduced to Bristol's League eleven in 1980/81 and spent another loan period with Exeter before signing for the Gills.

DAVID MEHMET (Midfield). David won England youth honours during his early days with Millwall. He made his League debut for the Lions in 1976/77 and completed more than 100 League games before joining Tampa Bay Rowdies in 1981. Charlton signed him for £50,000 later that year and he moved to Gillingham last summer. David is now Gillingham's top scorer, hitting his 15th last weekend.

JOHN LESLIE (Midfield). John started off as an amateur with Wimbledon and made his League debut for the Dons in 1977. He became a consistent goalscorer for the club and last season led their scoring list with 25 goals. He joined Gillingham last summer and scored his ninth goal for them in the 3-1 victory over Orient last Saturday.

TERRY COCHRANE (Forward). Terry was signed from Middlesbrough earlier this season and won his recall to the N. Ireland team in December when he won his 25th cap against Scotland. He began his career with Coleraine and entered English football with Burnley in 1976. Middlesbrough signed him for £210,000 in 1979.

TONY CASCARINO (Forward). Tony, signed from junior football two seasons ago, scored 18 goals last season. He netted his 9th of the current season against Orient last Saturday.

PHIL CAVENER (Forward). Phil joined Gillingham during the early weeks of this season after being released by Burnley. He joined Burnley from North Shields and made his League debut in 1979/80.

COLIN CLARKE (Forward). Colin was signed from Peterborough shortly before this season's transfer deadline. He started as a reserve player with Ipswich but made his League debut after joining Peterborough in 1981.

'Previous Encounters'

We welcome Gillingham today for their first ever league visit to Burnden Park.

Our only other meeting took place at the Priestfield Stadium last September when the 'Gills' ran out 2-0 winners. The result gave the Wanderers their first reverse of the season and Gillingham's first points.

Wanderers' keeper Simon Farnworth produced a number of good saves to keep Bolton in the game but could do nothing about a Dave Mehmet volley in the 24th minute and a Mark Weatherly drive after 64 minutes that won the game.

Late, Late Goals

The Wanderers have conceded last minute goals in both of their last away games and it's an interesting fact that of the 42 league goals conceded 14 have been scored in the final quarter of an hour. Of the remaining 28, they have been evenly spread over the duration of the other 75 minutes.

The best period of the game for goals scored by the Wanderers this season is also in the final stages with 11 being scored in each of the final 15 minutes of each half out of a total of 50.

Although Steve Thompson gave the Wanderers an early lead last Saturday at Burnley it was only the third time this season that Bolton have scored a league goal in the first 15 minutes of a game so the message is don't leave early!

Youth Team

Don't forget that the final of the Lancashire Youth Cup will take place next Monday 9th April kick off 7.00 p.m. here at Burnden when the young Wanderers entertain Manchester City.

City have won the trophy for the last two years and Bolton have some old scores to settle as they have been knocked out of the competition by City for the last three seasons. Two of these defeats took place here at Burnden whilst sandwiched in between was the final of 1981/82 at Maine Road which City won 2-1.

Junior Whites

Today's mascot is Ian Mark Paxton who is 11 years old. Ian lives on Hillock Road, Astley Bridge and attends Sharples County Primary School and enjoys playing football.

'Flashback'

15 years ago 5th April 1969. The Wanderers crumbled to their fourth consecutive hammering with a 5-1 defeat at Derby County. The only change to the side from the previous week's home defeat at the hands of Blackpool was at full back where Charlie Cooper replaced Paul Hallows.

Roy Greaves scored the Wanderers' goal before a crowd of 30,684 which proved to be the largest gate that the Wanderers played in front of that season.

7th April 1969. A John Byrom goal was enough to win the points against Bristol City at Burnden and to end the Wanderers depressing run.

John Hulme and Terry Wharton came into the side at the expense of Gordon Taylor and Freddie Hill who reverted to substitute.

8th April 1969. The Wanderers visited Aston Villa and picked up their first away point since February in a 1-1 draw. John Hulme scored Bolton's goal before a crowd of 25,214.

10 years ago 6th April 1974. The Wanderers were without leading goalscorer John Byrom for the visit of Cardiff City to Burnden. Stuart Lee took his place for his first league game of the year. Gil Reece gave the Welshmen the lead before Alan Waldron equalised to keep the Wanderers still in with a faint chance of promotion.

9th April 1974. Bolton visited runaway leaders Middlesbrough and returned with a point from a scoreless draw. Peter Olinyk came into the side for Stuart Lee in an otherwise unchanged side.

5 years ago 3rd April 1979. Bolton defeated Everton at Burnden by 3-1. Willie Morgan, Neil Whatmore and Paul Jones scored the goals before a crowd of 27,263.

7th April 1979. An unchanged Bolton side defeated QPR 2-1 at Burnden to extend their unbeaten run to 5 games. Frank Worthington put Bolton one up in the 37th minute with Paul Goddard equalising for Rangers just before half time.

BOLTON FANS ARE TOPS

A group of Wanderers' supporters have struck up a mutual spirit of admiration and friendship with the officials of Newport County following our first visit to Somerton Park a fortnight ago.

It began when one of the official Travel Club coaches broke down just before arriving at the ground. Newport officials came to the rescue when they offered the club's facilities to the stranded supporters at the end of the game while they waited for the relief coach to arrive.

The grateful supporters wrote to the club thanking them for all they had done to make their delay as pleasant as possible and have received this reply from club secretary Phillip Dauncey:

"It was a pleasure to help your supporters as they were very well mannered and behaved. I trust your team's victory helped to compensate for any inconvenience.

"Best wishes for the rest of the season."

John McGovern says: "I was proud to hear the tributes to our supporters. There is enough bad behaviour on the terraces which is brought to the public's attention these days and it's nice to hear good things being said about our fans."

Alan Gowling notched the winner just five minutes from time this after Rangers skipper Gerry Francis had been sent off after an incident with Roy Greaves.

11th April 1979. 49,617 saw the Wanderers win 2-1 at Manchester United. The only change to the side was at full back where Mike Graham came in for the injured Peter Nicholson.

Martin Buchan gave United a first half lead and on the hour they were awarded a penalty which Gordon McQueen missed on the second attempt.

Frank Worthington scored both Bolton goals with the winner coming in injury time to register his 22nd goal of the season.

Dear Sir,

I am the manager of Bolton's first Women's Football team and we provide facilities for women who want to play soccer. You may like to give us a mention in your team programme.

We formed the Bolton Boadiceans WFC last year and this is the first season in the Greater Manchester Women's Football League. Our success has been phenomenal. We have lost only twice and are currently three points clear on top of the League.

We train every Wednesday at Bolton Sports Centre 6.30-7.30 and ANY woman who wants to play football is welcome. They can contact Roger Lewis on 791876.

I can also provide you with a photo for your programme.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours faithfully

PHIL NEAL

THE MODEL PLAYER

By Colin Benson

ENGLAND fullback Phil Neal proved the model player when he showed off the new-look England strip at the unveiling of the new £1-million deal between the F.A. and Umbro International, which will span the next five years.

Ironically, the 30-year-old Liverpool defender had learned just 24-hours earlier that he was not to be included in Bobby Robson's squad to play France in Paris.

Disappointed naturally but not down hearted Phil reflected: "Hopefully I have contributed to the little bit of success England have had in the past few years and if Mr Robson needs me I shall always be available.

"The manager has got to try youngsters in the international arena and I suppose a friendly game is as good a time as any to do this.

"It is part of life's pattern, so I accepted it although of course as a professional it hurt me. But the day afterwards you just get on with it and concentrate on keeping your own standards and if the youngsters don't do it then he has always got my experience to fall back on."

Capped over 50 times by England, Phil could justly claim that he has been playing well in recent internationals and thus his sacking, even if only of a temporary nature, comes that much harder.

Says Phil: "I think that both England and Liverpool have probably seen the best football from me over the last 18 months.

"There is always problems for young players coming into the England set-up and it is very rarely that you see them at their best. I know from a personal point of view I did not feel right at international level until after about ten games so it would be wrong to expect too much too soon from the youngsters... they have got to be given time.

"I was also fortunate to gain European experience with my club team and for those youngsters in a similar position they will find that it stands them in good stead for the international game.

"As a defender I have always liked to push forward and be constructive and it does not matter who you are playing with really it should not change your own game. You either have a flair for attacking football or you don't and good managers will never ask you to do something which you can't do, they will encourage you to do what you are best at.

"I am getting older it is true but I don't think I have slowed down any in the past three years and I have no weight problems so as regards the future there is still plenty of football left in me yet.

"I have just signed a new playing contract with Liverpool so obviously they must still think I am capable and hopefully I shall be around for at least another couple of seasons after this one.

"To be honest I shall be very disappointed if the young kids Mr Robson has brought in do not blossom into good international players before the next World Cup finals in Mexico, but if I can maintain my form who knows? I could still be in the squad.

"We failed in the European Championship because we gave Denmark too much respect. They are a good side alright but we went out at Wembley absolutely petrified of what they might do and they didn't do a thing. That was our downfall, believing that they were a better side than they were.

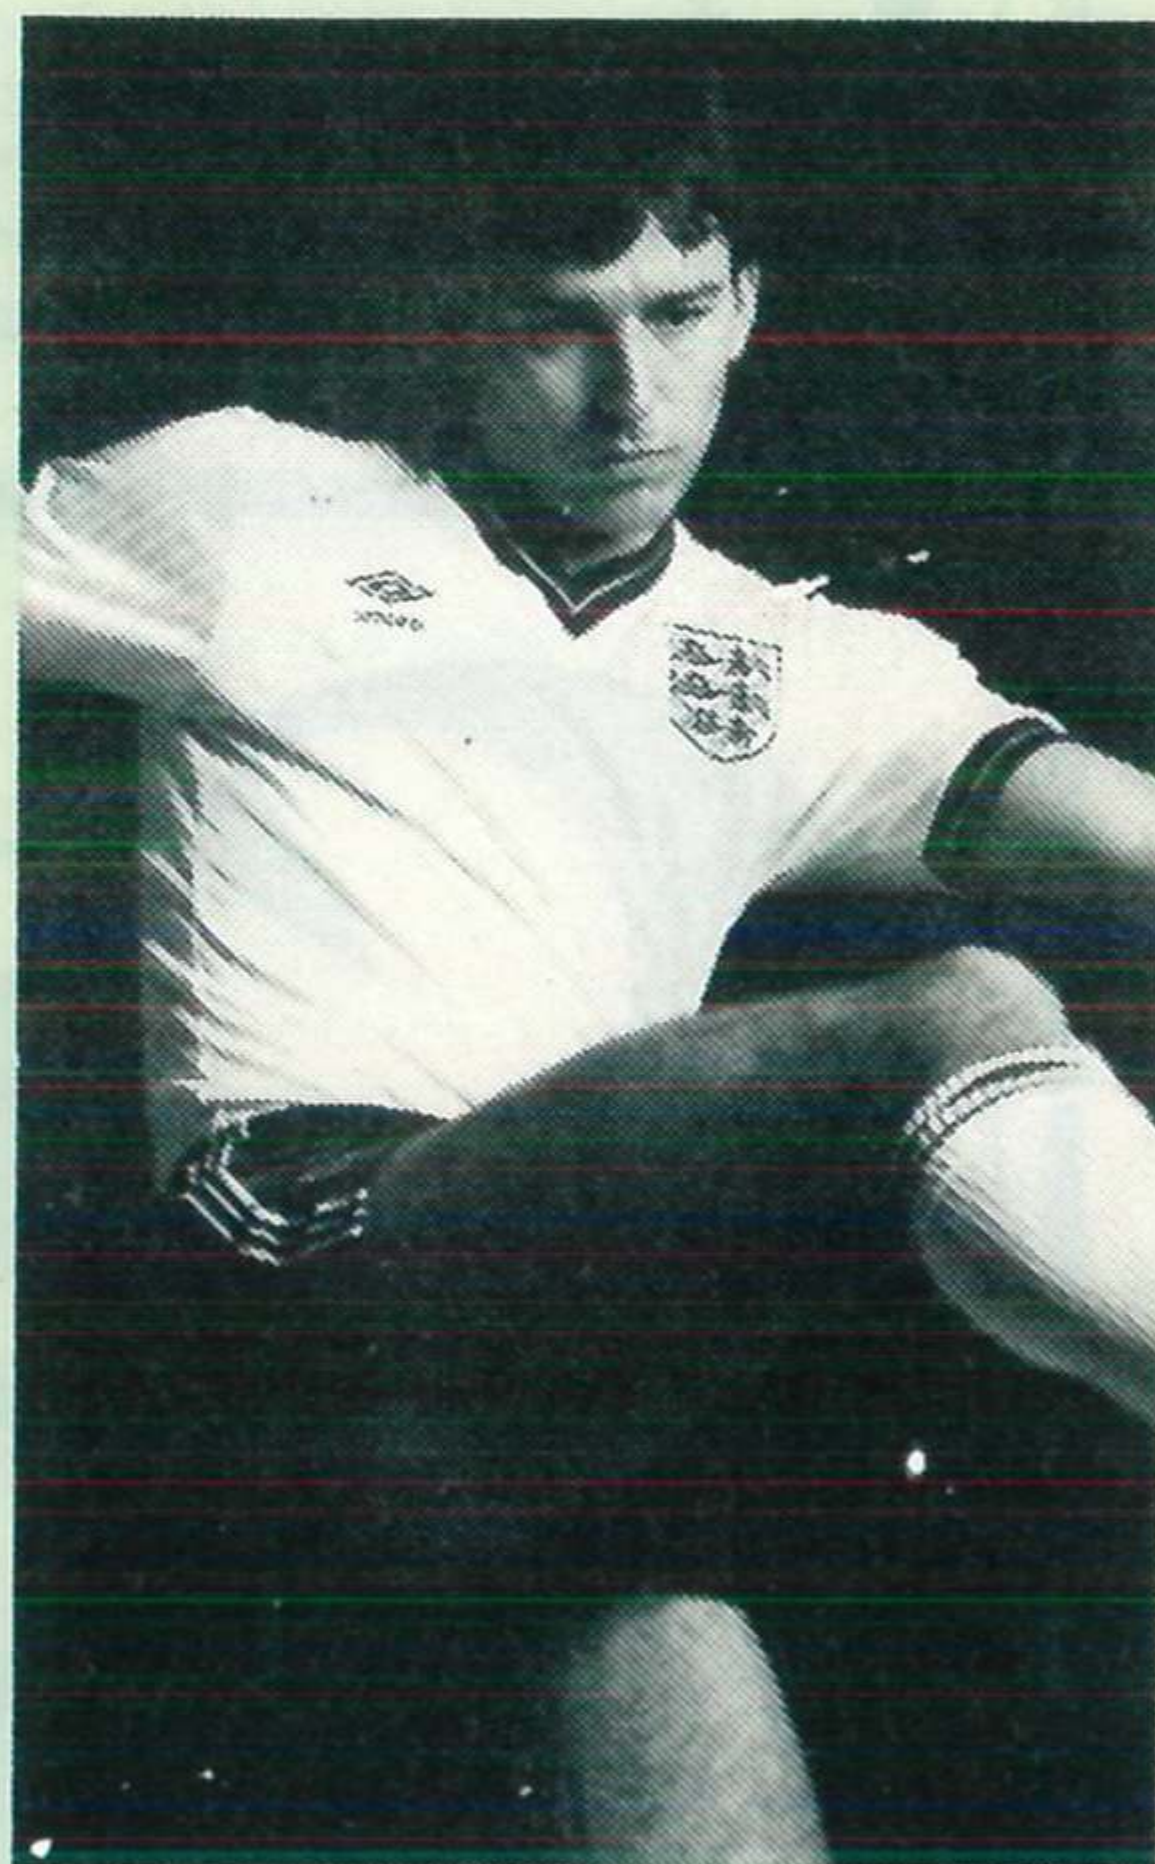

"These things happen though. You have to battle on and apply yourself at international level because it is a one off thing and generally you don't get another chance as our games against Denmark and Greece proved."

England's greatest triumphs in recent years have been achieved away from home which tends to suggest that there is a bit of a problem for the lads at Wembley. Phil dismisses the suggestion with a wry grin.

"It was harder when Ron Greenwood took charge, he reflects. "At that time we had experienced some terrible results at Wembley and he had to build up the confidence of the team again. But I certainly do not think that applies today, we all love playing at Wembley as all professionals all over the world do. The fans get behind us and it is as good as ever now.

"There are enough good youngsters around to suggest that England can enjoy a good future. I just hope that they can get the balance and blend between skill and workrate right."

Meanwhile Phil still has a lot to look forward to, particularly at club level, where Liverpool have carried the Umbro label across the fields of Europe. "We are doing quite well," he smiles with a wink.

Bradley's BRIEF

Ray Bradley of the 'Sunday Express' writes for you

The Watford wagon is beginning to roll again — thanks to an unlikely Little and Large partnership that seems to guarantee goals. Suddenly, Elton John's team are back in the pop charts with a double hit record that is catching on with fans all over the country.

Maurice "Mo" Johnston is the "Little" man in the act. A shy 20-year-old slightly-built Scot who was snapped up for £200,000 from Partick Thistle in November and has taken the First Division by storm.

He is quick, smart on the ball and dynamite in the penalty area. In Scotland he was branded as Charlie Nicholas Mark II last season after snapping 34 goals for Thistle.

Little Mo has made a mockery of that cynical comparison with a procession of golden goals which puts the Nicholas nightmare at Highbury in the shade. While Charlie's career seems to be going backwards, the Johnston gem shines like a 22-carat rock on the piano-playing fingers of his pop star chairman.

Big George Reilly is the "Large" man in this prospering partnership. He looks like a Scottish pit prop and some say he used to play like one at Cambridge.

PERFECT FOIL

He is 6ft 4in, a bit ungainly and a few First Division managers nearly choked on their All-Bran cereal when Watford forked out £100,000 for him as replacement for Luther Blissett.

Reilly's pedestrian career had started off at non-League Corby before he moved on to Northampton. He was a height man rather than a hit man and when he switched to Cambridge he was frequently used as an emergency central defender.

One local scribe referred to him as The Leaning Tower of Cambridge — an unkind remark that dismissed deceptive skills for such a big man. Those skills have blossomed at Watford alongside the darting Johnston who is equally quick to admonish any critics of his Scottish partner.

"Big George is the perfect foil for me," says Little Mo. "He gives defenders a lot of trouble with his strength and height and I have been able to cash in on the knockdowns. We are building a good understanding both on and off the pitch. That is vitally important."

The Big Yin takes a lot of the weight of Johnston who has trebled his transfer valuation since coming south. At White Hart Lane this season he terrorised Tottenham's defence with his darting runs besides grabbing two smart goals.

Spurs fans were quick to appreciate his skills which conjure up golden memories of Jimmy Greaves.

SPECIAL

Like Greaves he is quick to get into the box and seize on defensive slips like all born strikers. Since moving south he is also developing his talents as a creator.

He is quick on the turn and is fast learning the art of losing his marker before delivering the pay-off punch or the telling pass which wingers John Barnes and Nigel Callaghan thrive on. That sort of talent makes him a bit special. So many of our top strikers today are only too willing to pass the buck and play the ball off like a hot cinder because they might get clobbered.

"I have just been in the right place at the right time," says Little Mo modestly when asked to assess his assets after a glorious scoring spree.

He found the inevitable comparisons with Nicholas a bit embarrassing when he first spurted into the spotlight. He admits to being an admirer of the Celtic ace who lost his goal glint at Arsenal this season.

Says former manager Peter Cormack: "Little Mo has the knack of making scoring look easy. He is stronger than Nicholas on the ball and may soon be a lot better."

Johnston Mark I is beginning to leave the Pop Gunner of Highbury in his slip stream. Watford look to be on a real winner.

Maurice Johnston

All set - France v W. Germany Final

THE FAILURE of the four home countries to qualify for next summer's European Championship Finals in France was not the only disappointment of the championship. For with the World Champions Italy also failing and Russia, Holland, Czechoslovakia and Poland similarly deposed, the final tournament does not present a very appetising menu.

One might be tempted to suggest that the balance of power has shifted on the European scene, there certainly seems to have been a great levelling-out as far as international football goes. But the truth is, as was so evident in the World Cup finals in Spain, that many of the major powers have sunk to an all-time low.

Even mighty West Germany, the team which could proudly boast to be the best in Europe, are no longer the force they used to be, yet still are able to reach finals because of the general decline of international standards.

In the draw for these European championship finals West Germany, as the holders, and France, the home nation were the only seeds.

On first sight it seems that France have probably the slightly harder task in Group 1, where they face Denmark, Belgium and the comparatively inexperienced Yugoslavs.

Group 2 pairs West Germany, Portugal, Romania and Spain and with two teams qualifying from each section to form the semi-finals there seems little doubt that the holders will not power through to yet another major international final.

On paper then there might not be much to please the British football palate but experience reminds one not to pre-judge things in this game. So often fixtures which conjure up excitement beforehand fall sadly short of the expected while seemingly run of the mill fixtures can quite often produce unexpected quality.

The mere fact that there seems to be a general levelling out of standards suggests that we might be in for quite a surprise with some very closely fought encounters.

The French, led by the incomparable Michel Platini, remain the firm favourites to take the title, and if the home nation is successful you generally maintain a good atmosphere throughout the tournament.

Certainly a confrontation with West Germany in the final stages would definitely raise the temperature, for after that enthralling battle the two had in the semi-final of the last World Cup, the French have a score to settle.

The series will be staged at seven locations; Paris, Lyon, Lens, Strasbourg, Saint Etienne, Marseille and Nantes and for those of you wishing to fit the odd game into your summer holiday schedule, we publish here the fixtures and kick-off times.

They are a breed apart . . . those sometimes lonely figures in green pacing around the penalty area. Goalkeeping is a specialised art, the last line of defence and the first of attack. The responsibility is total, the price of failure decisive.

Strange then that even in this country where we pride ourselves on the quality and depth of goalkeeping talent available that football managers should basically ignore the need to provide specialised training and supervision for their No. 1 stars. Yet at most clubs the 'keepers participate in the general fitness training and apart from acting as the fall guy for shooting practice sessions are left to their own devices.

Former Queens Park Rangers and Birmingham City goalkeeper Mike Kelly is fully aware of the neglect in this direction and recalls: "As a youngster I did not get any help at all. I was encouraged of course but never given any technical advice about goalkeeping, and that was the way it remained right through my professional career.

"The staff helped by knocking crosses in for me to catch and so on but there was no detailed help that maybe would have made me a better player.

"I was a student of my position and used to think deeply about my play and analyse every move but you are not always objective when dealing with your own faults.

"Sometimes it can be a bad thing because you put pressure on yourself and can quickly become paranoid and start blaming yourself for every goal that starts hitting the back of the net, and that is not good."

Since time immemorial football management has seemed blind to the requirements of their goalkeepers. "In general coaches are very reluctant and scared to coach goalkeepers," claims Kelly.

LONERS

"Maybe it is because it is such a specialised position and requires so much technique that they shy away from doing it. Invariably the goalkeepers are sent off to a corner of the field to work themselves . . . That can work for a short period of time then the novelty wears off and they need to be guided.

"The other routine is to work goalkeepers by putting on exercises for shot stopping and reflexes but usually the shooting practices are designed for the outfield players as opposed to the goalkeepers who are often just picking themselves up from the previous dive when the next shot hits them on the top of the finger. So they are really not improving the goalkeeper or his technique.

"There is a need for specialised instruction by people who can point out the finer arts and details of the job."

It is easy to see why so much promising young talent in this position never materialises at the top. To succeed between the posts a goalkeeper must be very single minded and determined.

Peter Shilton is a good example of someone who is dedicated to making himself a better player.

"Shilts is one in a million," says Kelly. "He is so single minded. All through his career he has had to organise and prepare his own training sessions. And you need to be very strong both mentally and physically to do that. But not all goalkeepers have got these qualities and they need a bit of help."

To best describe the situation Mike uses golf as an analogy and cites the top tournament player who suddenly finds his swing is wrong. Could it be his grip, his back lift or follow through, or even the position of his feet that is causing the shots to go astray? Well another golfer could probably pick up the problem right away by just watching the player in action. The same criteria applies to goalkeeping."

AWARE

Mike is positive that some of our former custodians could provide an invaluable service to the game but cautions that just because a man has been an international class goalkeeper does not necessarily mean that he will be a good coach.

"Some players have just been naturals," he says "and they are not always aware of why they do things. You do not need to have been a great keeper to be a good goalkeeper coach. The art of coaching is being able to analyse a players strengths and weaknesses and then turn that knowledge into improving the pupil. Not everyone is capable of that. You have got to want to do it you have to be able to break things down."

The FA have recognised Mike's prowess in this field and he has worked with the England Youth and Under-21 squads as well as at club level with Fulham and more recently West Bromwich Albion. He has also run some goalkeeping courses for the FA and was involved in their highly successful TV coaching series.

"I think in general football is aware of the need for specialised coaching for goalkeepers," he says "but the financial situation in the game today makes it impossible for most clubs to employ a specialised coach."

One or two clubs do put special emphasis on this department of their trade. West Ham United have former 'keeper Ernie Gregory on their full-time payroll, Manchester United have had Harry Gregg, while Gordon Banks has operated with several midlands clubs and Bob Wilson has served both Arsenal and Queens Park Rangers.

But for the majority of young goalkeepers it is a matter of finding their own way, or gaining the advice of senior pros. England's latest recruit, Chris Woods of Norwich City, has lent heavily on his former Nottingham Forest team mate and the man he hopes to succeed in the England shirt, Peter Shilton, and is most grateful for the assistance of his more illustrious colleague.

One can't help wondering how much better some of our outstanding prospects could become given the right specialised education.

THEY OUGHT TO PLAY ON GRASS

Canaries former England striker Mick Channon was as bright and cheerful as always after Norwich City's 2-0 defeat at Loftus Road. Mick who has encountered all kinds of conditions all over the world couldn't come to terms with Queens Park Rangers plastic green swath and was pulled off in the 84th minute.

Afterwards he grinned: "It doesn't worry me if I only have to play on it once in a season, but if I had to play on it 42 times then I would do what Kevin Keegan is doing . . . retire!

RISING STANDARDS

The standard of football being displayed by clubs in the lower divisions of the Canon League has never been higher.

Maybe it has taken a season of unprecedented shock results in cup-ties to highlight the fact. But those cup upsets have been no surprise to the professionals.

The cynics will cite the trimming of playing staffs by clubs in the First and Second Divisions as the main reason because staff cuts have forced a better standard of player into the Third and Fourth Divisions.

To a certain extent that may be true, but you won't find Gordon Taylor, Secretary of the Professional Footballers' Association, or Joe Fagan, Manager of Liverpool, lining up with the cynics.

Says Taylor: "As far as the cup shocks are concerned, we must never under-estimate the contribution of the older professionals. A lot of them are vastly experienced in the big-game atmosphere and they can rise to the occasion for the one-offs. But it isn't only in cup-ties that the Third and Fourth Division players are turning it on. I've seen some fine Canon League matches, too."

Fagan has a different theory. "In the old days", says the Liverpool boss, "you could reckon that five or six of the opposition would come flying at you. The difference now is that they all do it. The commitment has improved no end. And they are so well organised. It's wonderful to see, though I'm hanged if you welcome it against you."

Walsall striker Ally Brown, who has played most of his football in the First Division and a little of it in the Second, readily admits: "This is my first season in the Third Division and I've been surprised by the quality of the football that some of the teams are playing. Maybe it is because there are a few more mature players than there used to be, but I don't see any reason for any lower division side to be frightened of big teams."

Dennis Smith, the manager who has taken York City to the top of the Fourth Division after spending all his playing career in the First and Second Divisions with Stoke City, sees it slightly differently. "There is a little less fear in the lower divisions. The pressure to win or bust is not so great. Players and managers in the Third and Fourth know they have something to prove and they also know they've got to entertain to get the crowds in. Put it all together and you've the right mix, haven't you?"

Bobby Gould, who has rebuilt First Division Coventry on a foundation of players from the lower division, says: "Every professional footballer has ability and players in the Third and Fourth Divisions get more chance to show it. They can be themselves. There is not the same intensity of planning as in the First Division. They can play it a little bit more off the cuff.

"I also think, having been one of them until this season, that managers in the lower divisions caught on more quickly to the value of three points for a win. Generally, lower division teams play with a more positive attitude, pushing the ball about more quickly."

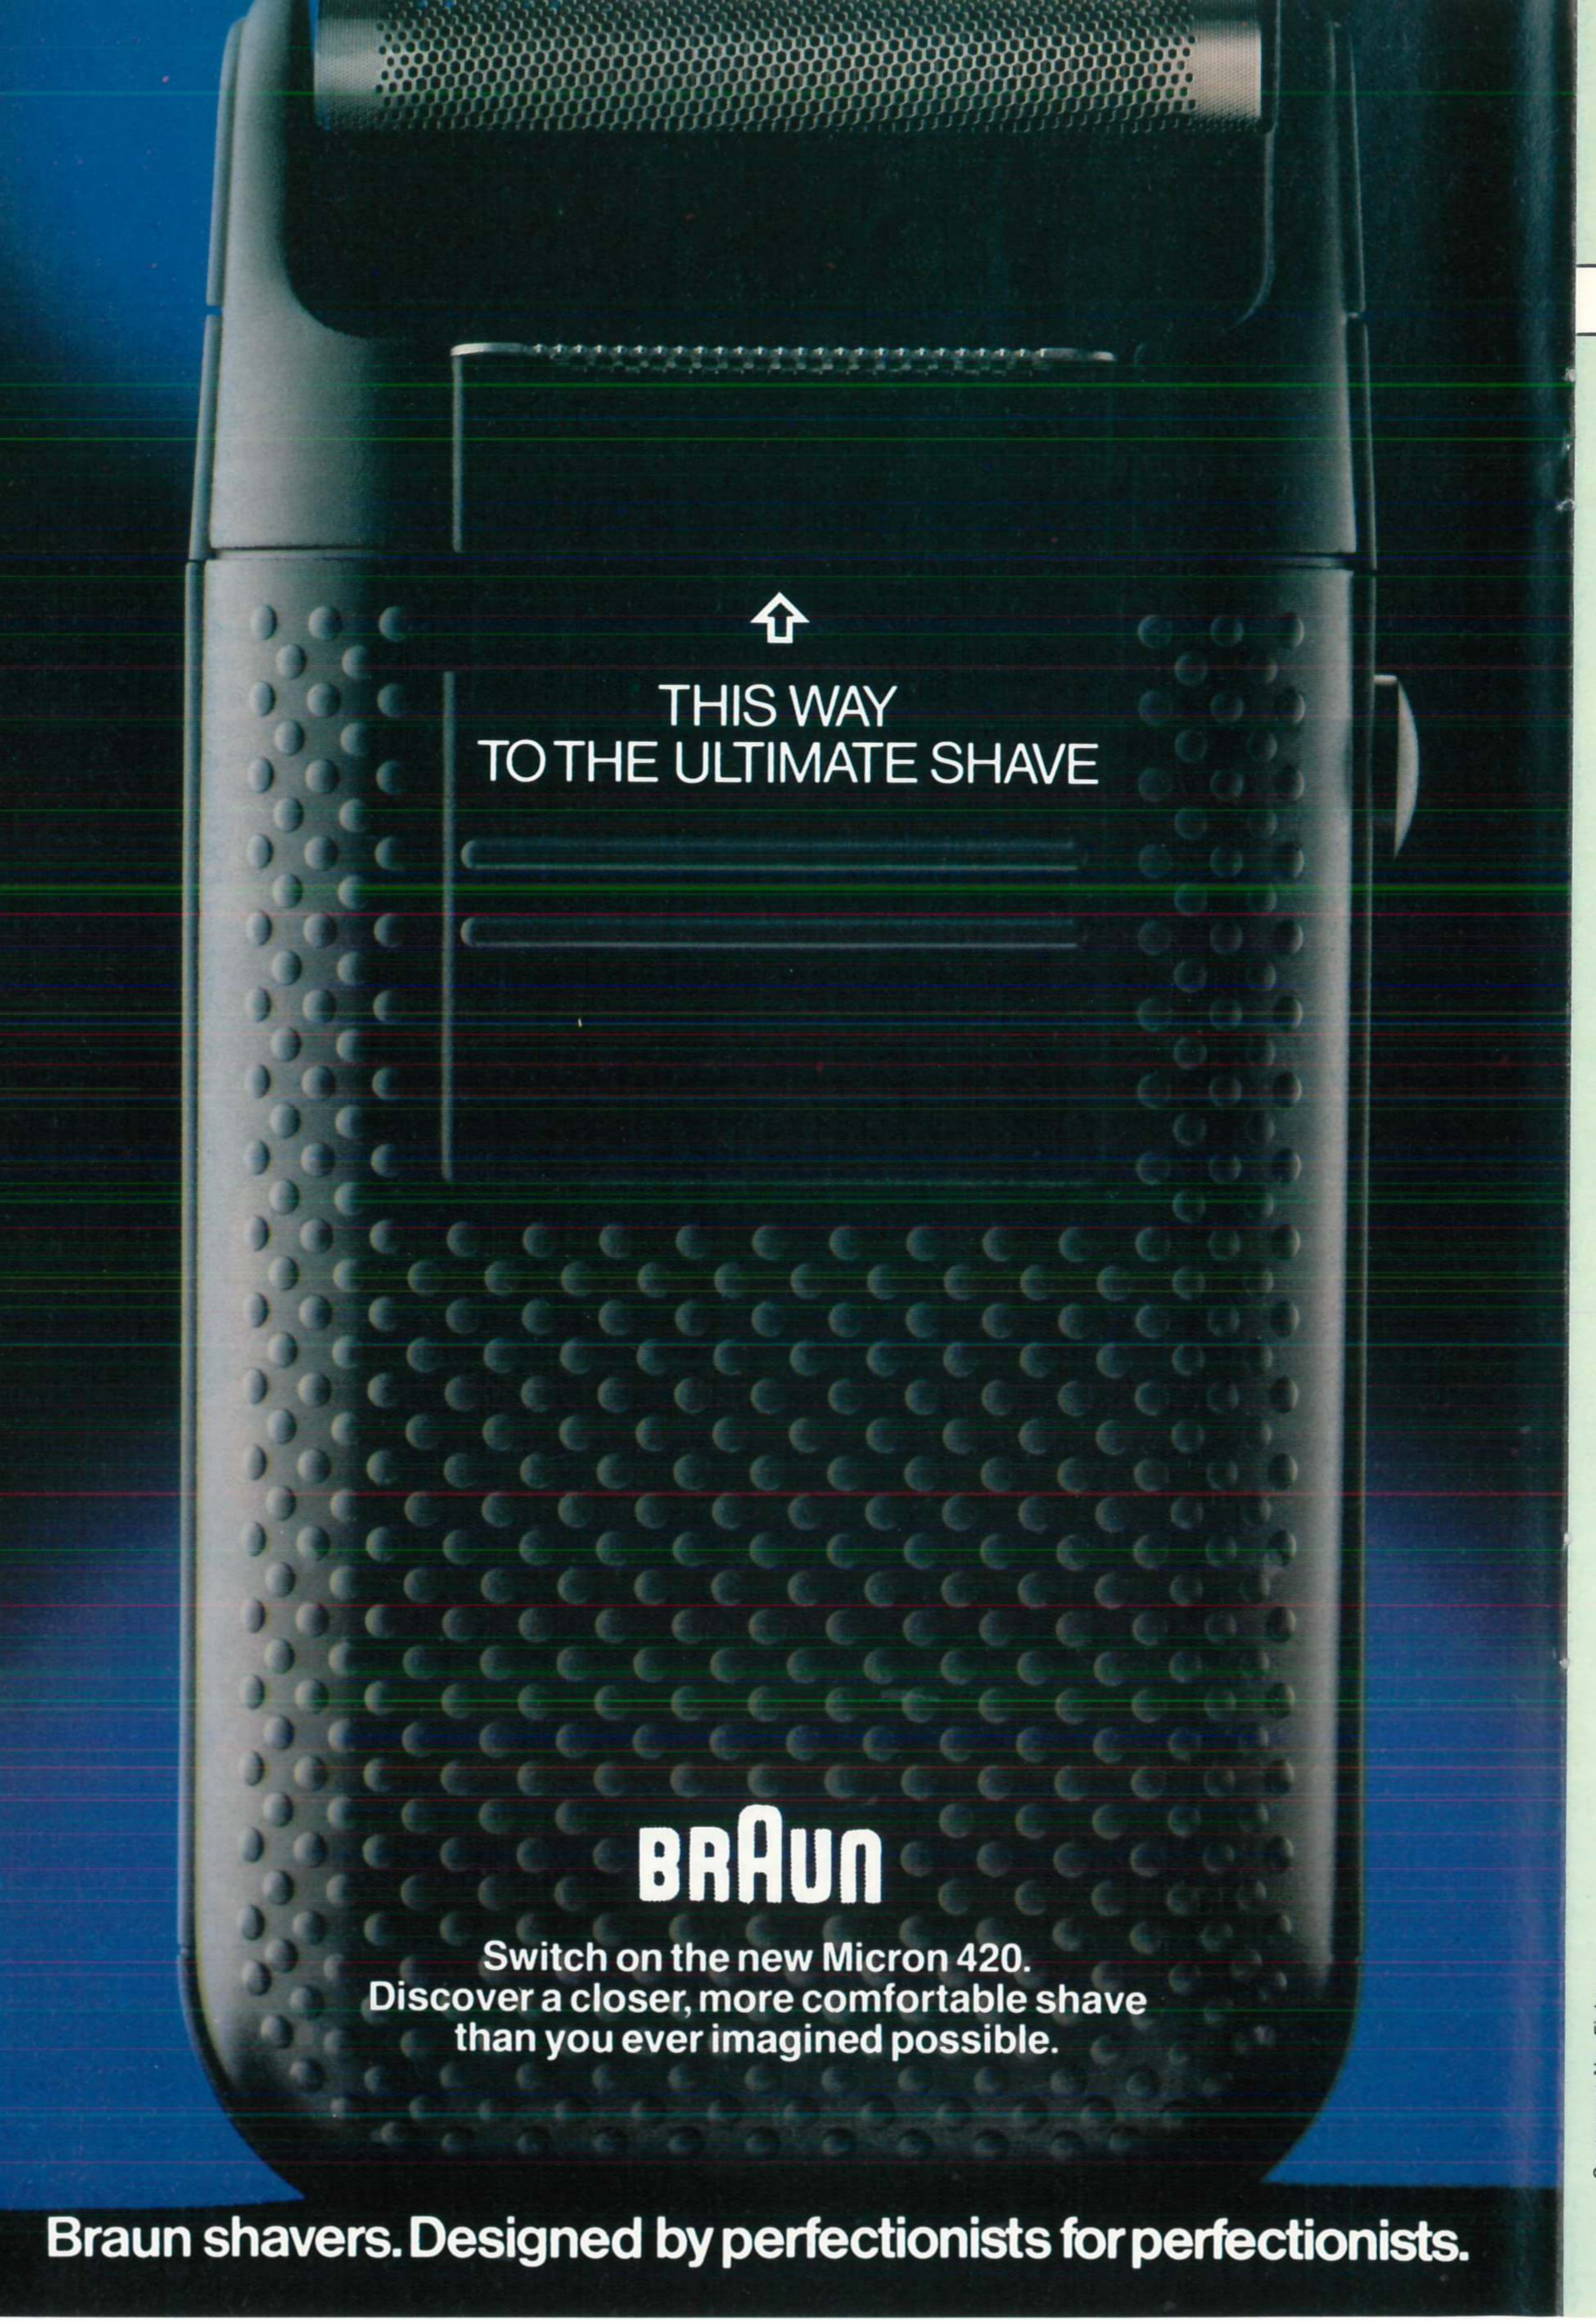

Dave Bassett, manager of Wimbledon, has taken the south-west London club to their highest ever position in the League on not much more than the proverbial shoestring. "Lower division clubs give players their opportunity earlier" asserts Bassett "and are attracting good lads for that reason. Perhaps the smaller clubs can give a little more intensive coaching. Maybe we are fairly typical. We operate on a staff of 16; six have come through the youth team, and three from non-League clubs. But they are all 'goers' who enjoy their football."

Perhaps that is the secret of Wimbledon, and most of the other clubs who play their football in front of small crowds. If the players are seen to be enjoying their game, so will the fans.

A-Z

Part 23 — by Tony Pullein

PROMOTION (Continued). After winning promotion in 1911, the Wanderers remained in the First Division until 1934 and it then took two seasons to rebuild. Towards the end of 1934/35, the team found its confidence and finished unbeaten in their final 12 games. They carried this form into the following season by avoiding defeat in their opening seven fixtures and by the half-way stage the Wanderers' high-scoring side was shaping well for promotion. For the second season in succession, the Wanderers also enjoyed a good run in the F.A. Cup. But, whereas their survival to the sixth round was one of the reasons they failed to clinch promotion in 1934, this time success ran hand in hand in both competitions. In the end we were beaten by West Bromwich in the semi-final of the Cup but we held on to pip West Ham to runners-up spot in the Second Division. A critical meeting between the clubs had taken place a couple of weeks before the end of the season when Bolton's 3-1 victory really clinched promotion. Jack Milsom was the Second Division's leading goalscorer with 31 goals whilst Ray Westwood finished on 30.

It wasn't until 1972/73 that the club experienced another successful promotion campaign. By then we had dropped into the Third Division and, after failing to get back at the first attempt, succeeded at the second time of asking. Under Jimmy Armfield's guidance, Bolton rose to the top of the table in November and never subsequently fell below third place. An unbeaten run of eight games took us into November and established the side in a strong position. With John Byrom (he finished with 22 League and Cup goals) and Garry Jones (21) scoring consistently, the Wanderers looked stronger as the season progressed. Four wins and a draw in the final five games ensured that the club went up as Third Division champions.

The match that guaranteed promotion was at home to York City on Easter Saturday. A crowd of 19,999 turned up to cheer two goals from Freddie Lee and another from Peter Nicholson that gave us a resounding 3-0 win. As Notts County were held at home to a draw by Blackburn Rovers, that victory also ensured top place. A crowd of 21,646 turned up for the final game at home to Brentford, won 2-0, to celebrate the club's return to Division Two.

Further promotion was achieved in 1977/78 after three years of frustration. After missing by one point in 1976, the Wanderers suffered the same fate 12 months later. But justice was finally done in 1977/78 which opened with three wins in a row.

The team was now being run by Ian Greaves and suffered only one defeat in its opening 17 League matches. By then the club was well established at the top of the Second Division. Strangely, it was after the Wanderers had lost 0-1 at Cardiff that it was known promotion was virtually assured. Brighton could still have ousted us into fourth place but only on goal-average. And that was unlikely. A 1-0 win at Blackburn in our penultimate match ended all the speculation and a goalless draw with Fulham, watched by 34,110 Burnden fans, gave us the Second Division championship. Neil Whatmore was our leading scorer with 21 in League and Cup, followed by Frank Worthington on 12.

REDFEARN, Neil. Neil served his apprenticeship with Nottingham Forest but he was eventually released and joined Bolton's professional staff in June 1982. He made his League debut at Rotherham in February 1983 and enjoyed a short run in the side. He opened the current season as a member of the senior side.

RIDDING, Bill. Bill Ridding became one of the longest-serving managers in the game at Burnden Park. He was appointed secretary-manager in 1950 and he remained in charge until his resignation in August 1968. The highlight of his managerial career came in 1953 when he led the team out at Wembley for that magnificent F.A. Cup final against Blackpool, even though his team was beaten 3-4. That will always be remembered as one of the greatest Cup finals of all. In 1958 he took us to Wembley again and this time had the pleasure of being on the winning side against Manchester United. As a player, Mr Ridding was a centre-forward with Manchester City, Manchester United and Tranmere Rovers. Injuries eventually ended his playing days and it was just after the war that he joined Bolton's training staff.

SIMON RUDGE will be featured in part 24 of our A-Z, together with the Welsh international full-back JOHN ROBERTS. We shall also be recalling the poignant moments when the club was overtaken by relegation.
